Shane Jones (Author of Daniel Fights a Hurricane (2012 ... review 1: If after Crystal Eaters Shane Jones never writes a novel again he has ended on a note that might be called supersonic. Light Boxes was written in a style that might have reflected more about the process of writing it than the story told (although that is part of the story of Ligh... Review: DANIEL FIGHTS A HURRICANE by Shane Jones | BWR Review by ERIN L. MILLER. The unfolding of Shane Jones's newest novel Daniel Fights a Hurricane ultimately hinges on fear—specifically, protagonist Daniel Suppleton's fear of a hurricane wiping out the town. Suppleton creates an internal world that stems from a colony of deep anxieties, self-doubt, and a too-active imagination.
