Production of lentiviral vectors using novel ... Lentiviral vectors provide important advantages in gene therapy applications, such as a large transgene-carrying capacity [] and the ability to transduce dividing and non-dividing cells [].Despite ... Factors Influencing the Titer and Infectivity of ... vector, which is derived from a variant of the myeloproliferative sarcoma virus with the negative control region of the long terminal repeat [LTR] removed) (Challita et al., 1995), the human elongation factor 1a (hEF1 ) promoter, or the human ubiquitin promoter. Production of lentiviral vectors - ScienceDirect Lentiviral vectors (LV) have seen considerably increase in use as gene therapy vectors for the treatment of acquired and inherited diseases. This review presents the state of the art of the production of these vectors with particular emphasis on their large-scale production for clinical purposes.
